

FRANKLIN MAYOR'S STORMY CAREER NOW AT END

Honesty of Republicans Fails Democrats

'DEBUNKING' OF LAFOLLETTE IS CAMPAIGN'S AIM

Butler Tells Committee Party Wants to Show Up Wisconsin Man

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 17.—The republican national campaign organization intends if possible to collect an additional $1,300,000 to carry on its work between now and election day. William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee, testified today before the special senate campaign fund investigating committee.

World Complete Budget.
This sum would make up the $3,000,000 budget which the republican campaign committee decided at the outset of the campaign, would be necessary for the conduct of what Butler denominated as a "vigorous campaign."

"That is a modest amount, in view of expenditures that have been made heretofore," President Coolidge's field marshal told the committee.

Chairman Borah inquired as to the uses of which the funds had been put and Mr. Butler said it was used by the various bureaus within the organization.

"Are there any organizations which are raising money and expending it for the republican ticket other than your own organization," asked Senator Borah.

"None that I am aware of except Butler replied.

Is Final Authority.
Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, took over the examination.

"Are you the sole authority when it comes to the question of what shall not be done with the funds raised?" he asked.

"That's a difficult question to answer," Butler replied. "I take the advice of other people."

"But you are the final authority," pursued Senator Caraway. "You can answer that 'yes' or 'no'."

"Yes, that's right," the national chairman said.

"When you made the estimate at the start of the campaign did you decide how much was to be spent on publicity?"

"As to the expense for publicity does that include Butler plate?"

"A good deal of it."

"And 'canned editorials'?"

Mr. Butler seemed nonplussed and the senator explained "You get newspapers to print editorials got out by the republican organization without their disclosing their source?"

"I don't know about that," the witness said.

You fixed the budget at $3,000,000, said Senator Caraway, "and you called on Pennsylvania for $600,000, of one fifth of the amount, why was that?"

Mr. Butler started to explain and Senator Caraway broke in: "Was it because you regarded Pennsylvania as a fruitful field?" he asked.

"I had hoped so," Butler replied. Illinois was put down for $400,000 of the total for a similar reason.

Senator Caraway remarked that if the republican organization had gone on the same percentage basis through the 45 states it would have received more than a billion dollars.

"No, no," said Mr. Butler.

The republican national chairman was excused after he had agreed to supply a detailed list of all campaign contributions and expenditures within a few days.

George Barr Baker, director of publicity bureau of the republican committee, was called and gave details of the expenditure of $437,000 up to October 16, last, by his bureau.

on of Chief of Police Kidnapped by Bootleggers

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Petersburg, Ill., Oct. 17.—Donald Pittman, 16, high school boy and son of Chief of Police Pittman of Petersburg, was found unconscious near the tracks of the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis Railway at Athens, Ill., and later said he had been kidnapped by two men. Sheriff George P. Clary's only theory is that bootleggers against whom Chief Pittman has been active, sought revenge.

The boy was delivering milk and shortly after dusk he said he was tracked from behind, bound and gagged and taken away in an automobile to a cave where he was unbound. The door was locked, he said, but after when his captors returned, he said he eluded them and fled but was overtaken and struck down and remembered nothing more.

SHENANDOAH IS BUCKING WINDS ALONG PACIFIC

Has Postponed Visit to 'Frisco Until Return Along Coast.

BULLETIN.
San Francisco, Calif., Oct. 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Shenandoah, delayed because of storms encountered last night on her trip from San Diego to San Francisco, today put a message in the air to Mayor James Rolph, Jr., saying the aircraft would not visit San Francisco until her return trip.

San Francisco, Calif., Oct. 17.—(By the Associated Press.)—Cruising in the air path of the old California missions through a storm which delayed her progress during the night, the navy dirigible Shenandoah was moving along the central California coast early today into the land of the Argonauts.

The giant aircraft which was released into the air from her San Diego, North Island, mooring mast at 9:15 yesterday morning headed for Camp Lewis, Washington, dropped behind her schedule after leaving Los Angeles when she nosed into strong headwinds, which delayed her scheduled passing over San Francisco until 5 o'clock this morning.

The air cruiser is moving on a 48-hour schedule to arrive at Camp Lewis at 9 a. m. tomorrow morning, but it is believed the storms last night will lengthen the cruising time. She was reported by the Navy Department as being 58 miles south of San Francisco at an early hour this morning. She reported that she was progressing nicely with no engine trouble and that she would be over San Francisco at 5 a. m., provided nothing happened.

She is bucking a head wind according to the message.

Aboard U. S. S. Shenandoah, 3:45 a. m., Oct. 17.—(By the Associated Press.) Bumping a twenty miles an hour head wind the navy dirigible Shenandoah cut diagonally across the Pacific from Point Arguello to the Point Piedras Blancas last night. Flying at a height of 1,500 feet she rode above the ocean, sighting an occasional ship as steadily as if the moonlight night were calm in the face of the blow. She was not making more than 25 to 30 miles an hour.

Eight super-dreadnaughts at target practice, with tugs like dots, towing markers and puffs of smoke, followed by antiaircraft high in the air, as shells ricocheted across the surface in hopes of a mile each, lay like a painting on a miniature sea, as the Shenandoah passed two thousand feet above the United States battle fleet yesterday.

The Shenandoah officially belongs to the scout cruiser fleet in the Atlantic while the battleship fleet busily engaged in target practice, leaving a broad white wake as it circled between San Pedro and Santa Catalina island, belongs to the Pacific.

The Shenandoah had come from the Atlantic in a ship of the air, but, nevertheless a navy ship making a new record for a new art.

Watched from Battle Ships.
While the Panama Canal cut eight thousand miles from the course over which the Oregon doubled the horn in 1898, the two American fleets were separated by weeks but the Shenandoah flight has reduced the separation to one of days. As the Shenandoah approached out of the chill fog, the sun bursting through, illuminated her like a silver arrow in the sky. Decks of the battleships far below were alive with men and puffs of smoke ceased as binoculars in the control car of the dirigible revealed the up of the skies.

The vacant spaces in subdivisions showed signs of life as the Shenandoah turned inland from San Pedro toward Los Angeles. Roofs of every skyscraper in the city were crowded and Hollywood's automobiles trailed along the road. The dirigible headed out to sea an hour later.

Steady winds held the Shenandoah down to 30 miles an hour.

EDITOR-FRIEND OF MANY PRESIDENTS DEAD IN CAPITAL

Herman H. Kohlsaat is Stricken at Home of Secretary Hoover.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Oct. 17.—H. H. Kohlsaat, noted former Chicago publisher and close friend of many presidents, died suddenly here today at the home of Secretary Hoover.

He had come to Washington for a visit and although he had been in poor health for some months, his condition had not been considered serious. He was 71 years old.

Well Known Journalist
Hermann H. Kohlsaat was well known as a journalist through his many years' connection with Chicago newspapers. He owned and edited at different times the Chicago Inter-Ocean, Chicago Times-Herald, Chicago Record-Herald and Chicago Evening Post. For 20 years he was active in the public affairs of the city as an editor and as a private citizen.

Mr. Kohlsaat played a prominent part in the investigations that resulted in the United States Senate declaring vacant the seat of Senator William Lorimer. He furnished the information that resulted in bringing Lorimer before the Senate, the second time after he had been vindicated in the first hearing.

Mr. Kohlsaat was born in Albion, Edwards county, O., March 22, 1853, and was taken to Galena, Ill., by his parents when a child. He was educated in Galena, following which he went to Chicago and found employment as a newspaper carrier and later as a salesman for a wholesale bakery. His next venture was the catering business, which he started on his own account, and in a few years he was the owner of a string of lunch counters and bakeries.

In 1893 he disposed of his restaurant business and purchased from William Penn Nixon a half interest in the Chicago Inter-Ocean of which he became business manager. In 1895 he sold his share of the paper.

On the death of James W. Scott, Mr. Kohlsaat purchased the Chicago Times-Herald and the Chicago Evening Post and became editor of both papers, continuing in that capacity until 1901, when he took over the Chicago Record, owned by Victor F. Lawson, and consolidated it with the Chicago Times-Herald. He called the merged papers the Chicago Record-Herald. At the same time he sold the Evening Post to John C. Schaffer.

Knew Many Presidents
Mr. Kohlsaat remained at the helm of the Record-Herald until 1902, when he turned the property over to others and devoted himself to his real estate and interests. Eight years later he again took charge of the Record-Herald which he continued to direct until Oct. 1912, when he purchased the Chicago Inter-Ocean from George W. Hinman and became its editor, a position he held for a year, when the paper changed hands and he retired from active journalism.

In 1890 Mr. Kohlsaat married Mabel E. Blake of Chicago, and two daughters were the result of the union. One of them is the wife of Potter Palmer, Jr.

Mr. Kohlsaat presented a statue of General U. S. Grant to the city of Galena and gave liberally to charity. Since 1913 he spent most of his time in New York and Europe, although he published his personal recollections of his association with presidents from McKinley to President Harding.

Death resulted from a stroke of paralysis suffered by Mr. Kohlsaat at the Hoover residence on Tuesday. Mrs. Kohlsaat and her two daughters, Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago and Mrs. Roger Shepard of St. Paul were with him at the time of his death.

G. O. P. Mass Meeting at Paw Paw this Evening

Warner. Music will be furnished by the Paw Paw band.

Michigan Students in Accident: One Killed

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 17.—One youth is dead, another probably will die and three others are suffering from injuries received last night when their automobiles came together near here.

The youths, students at the University of Michigan, were en route from Ann Arbor to Urbana, to attend the Illinois-Michigan football game tomorrow.

LEGION TEAM TO CLINTON SUNDAY FOR HARD GAME

Many Fans to Drive to Iowa City to See Battle.

The Dixon Legion football team will play their first out of town game Sunday afternoon when they go to Clinton, Iowa, to meet the Legion team from that city in the first of a two-game series to be played this fall. Last year Clinton threatened to "clean up" the locals, and because of injuries to members of the team, players were imported but the Iowans had padded somewhat and won. In Sunday's game there will be no importations as far as the Dixon team is concerned, the same lineup that worked so effectively against the Spring Valley Wild Cats last Sunday being used.

Coach Risley announced today that there would be no changes in the lineup and that the players were in excellent shape for this contest, which is expected to be a hard fought one. There are no cripples on the team, Whitcombe having recovered from a sprained ankle and being in readiness to participate in the contest against Clinton.

It is expected that a crowd of not less than 250 fans will drive to Clinton Sunday to witness the performance and the team will be accompanied by the Legion post band. Tuesday Wednesday and Thursday evenings the team put in hard scrimmage practice at Brown's field against a middle weight club that has recently been organized.

Coach A. C. Bowers of the high will be unable to officiate at the Clinton game because of injuries he sustained while drilling his own squad Wednesday evening. Sherwood Dixon will accompany the team and will doubtless officiate as umpire, the referee being selected by the Clinton management.

High School to Polo
The Dixon high school football team will play their first out of town game tomorrow afternoon at Polo, and every member of the squad is confident of winning. This confidence is not over enthusiastic, however, as the defeat suffered at the hands of Belvidere two weeks ago has not been forgotten. Coach Bowers expects to take 26 men in his squad and will start the regular first team against Polo.

During the week the team has been drilling every night at the northside athletic field and some changes have been made. Breaking up of forward passes has been practiced every night and the team has shown considerable progress in this work, which has been lacking.

Coach Bowers is badly crippled and is getting around with a cane, having sustained a painful injury while practicing with the team Wednesday evening. He expects to start his regular first string of players and will substitute others in the second half. A large delegation of high school students will accompany the team on their first out-of-town game.

Attack on Children by Negroes Arouses Town

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Richmond, Va., Oct. 17.—Two white children on their way to attend classes at the Germantown school, just outside the Richmond city limits, were accosted this morning by two negro men, police here were notified. A detail rushed to the scene.

The reported occurrence is the fifth of its kind within a week during which time negroes have attacked or attempted to attack seven white women. It followed closely on the attack yesterday of a woman on the Petersburg-Richmond turnpike. A posse of officers and citizens spent the entire night searching for this assailant and every effort has been made to apprehend those responsible for the outrages.

Speed at "Death Corners" Resulted in Auto Disaster

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 17.—Two much speed at "death corners" as McLean residents have named it, a sharp curve to the west on the St. Louis hard road there, spelled disaster to a Chicago family of tourists. The car went off the hard road down a steep incline and crashed into the ditch. The name of the family was Elm, but their given names had not been learned yet. Mrs. Elm received severe cuts and was internally injured. Her husband sustained a broken hip. With Mr. and Mrs. Elm was Mr. Elm's sister, two children, a boy of 15 and one of 4. They were also seriously injured.

Brandagee's Suicide Leaves Connecticut With But One Senator

The death of Senator Frank B. Brandagee of Connecticut is considered a blow to the Republican organization. It will leave Connecticut with but one senator as it will be some time before a special election to fill the vacancy can be held. Senator Rorah of Idaho probably will succeed him as chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee. This is believed to be Senator Brandagee's last picture, taken a short time before his suicide.

POISONERS WILL DENY GUILT IN COURT THIS P. M.

Hight and Mrs. Sweeten Will Plead "Not Guilty" to Charge.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Mount Vernon, Ill., Oct. 17.—Arraignment of Lawrence M. Hight, former Methodist Episcopal minister of Ina, Ill., and of Mrs. Sweeten of Ina, Ill., in connection with the deaths of the ex-minister's wife, Anna and of Mrs. Sweeten's husband, Wilford, was on the docket of the circuit court here today. A joint indictment charging murder was issued yesterday by the grand jury.

While Hight had previously announced that he was penitent and could not afford to retain counsel for his defense, relatives came to his aid and engaged former Judge Nelson B. Layman, of Duquoin, who announced last night that Hight would not plead guilty. Mrs. Sweeten also made known through her attorney Robert E. Smith of this city, that she would not plead guilty.

The two were arrested last month after gossip had linked their names. Hight, who was taken into custody first confessed that he had poisoned his wife and Mrs. Sweeten's husband, but later admitted that he had attempted to shield Mrs. Sweeten by taking upon himself responsibility for Sweeten's death. He later said he had poisoned his wife, while Mrs. Sweeten had administered the poison to her husband so that they could be married. Mrs. Sweeten insisted that he had been prompted by the former clergyman.

Mrs. Sweeten is held in jail at Salem, Illinois, because there are no quarters for women prisoners here. Hight has been a prisoner here since he was brought back from Nashville where he was taken a few days after making his confession, in order to prevent any unforeseen attack upon him.

Special Panel of Jury Dismissed by Edwards

Judge Harry Edwards yesterday afternoon dismissed the special panel of petit jurors for the term. Several cases of minor importance were disposed of this week and the cases remaining on the docket will be tried before the court. At the opening of the September term there was an indication of several weeks of jury work, but settlements were effected in many of these cases thus shortening the work of the jurors.

Schools of Lee County in Vacation Next Week

Check for Coolidge

Atty. Ernest McDougall of Chicago and R. A. Rodsch of Dixon visited Franklin Grove today in the interest of the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket, making open air speeches on the street. They had a large crowd but were frequently interrupted by their listeners who challenged certain statements. At the conclusion of the speech somebody in the crowd yelled, "Well, boys, let's give three cheers for Cal Coolidge," and the streets of Franklin Grove rang and reverberated with three rousing cheers for the Republican ticket.

NEXT WEEK TO BE OBSERVED HERE IN CAMPAIGN FOR "Y"

Annual Membership Drive to Be Conducted; All Dixon Should Help.

Next week will be known throughout this district as "Y. M. C. A. week," when special emphasis will be placed on the work of the local association. During the week a campaign for membership will be launched.

The plan of campaign has been changed this year and instead of prospect lists the city has been divided into five districts, each district having between five and ten teams, composed of three workers each. These teams will make a house-to-house canvass of the entire city.

The campaign will open with a luncheon to all team members on Tuesday evening, October 21st, at the association buildings, when all workers will receive their instructions and districts. Several "set-up" meetings of the leaders have already been held.

Supper will be served each evening at the "Y" buildings during the week. A membership campaign at which time the workers will make their reports. It is expected that the membership will be greatly increased as well as the present memberships renewed.

Many Reasons for "Y".
There are many reasons why each man and boy in Dixon should be a member of the local Y. M. C. A.

The "Y" is one of the greatest forces in our city that makes for the conservation of boyhood. What would it profit Dixon to gain the whole world and lose its own boys?

The boys of a community possess a greater unspent physical energy than any other class. Shall this strength be wasted in mischief-making, devilry and destructive works or shall it be diverted to good ends? They have more power temporarily than any other class. If you reach an old man and interest him in right objects you are dealing in addition. If you reach a boy you are dealing in multiplication. Without the least doubt the boys of this community constitute its principal asset.

The Young Men's Christian Association is in a position to conserve and really use this asset as much as if more than any other agency, it is pointed out. The gymnasium and swimming pool are in almost constant use and the reading room and boys' game room are always filled up. Take it all in all the "Y" is one busy place and needs the support of every loyal Dixonian.

Prominent Men Speak at Grace Church Services

Special meetings at the Grace Evangelical church are progressing nicely. Last evening H. B. Centz a converted Hebrew representing the Chicago Hebrew Mission, gave an inspiring message on a portion of the 21st chapter of the Gospel of John, Professor Boles of Wheaton College, to be the speaker this evening. Professor Boles, at one time an infidel and disbeliever in the Bible and its teachings regarding creation, etc., was wonderfully saved and will give his testimony. Dr. Henry W. Stough prominent Congregational Evangelist of Wheaton, Ill., will be the speaker on Sunday. Meetings are being planned for morning, afternoon and evening, so that everybody may have the opportunity to hear him. He was associated with Billy Sunday in his campaigns.

Springfield Man Beaten to Death With Gas Pipe

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Springfield, Ill., Oct. 17.—While a young woman looked on, George Xamis, confectionery store proprietor, was attacked and beaten to death with a lead pipe late last night.

Reporting the attack at the police station immediately afterward, the girl said Xamis' automobile had been followed through Springfield streets by a large touring car, which stopped whenever Xamis did. The attack, she said, was made without words, and Xamis' only outcry was to ask what was wanted of him. His assailant escaped.

Xamis was a veteran of the World War and a popular member of the city's Greek population.

GEO. O'MALLEY HOME DAMAGED BY FIRE THURS.

$6,000 Loss in Blaze on Hennepin Ave. Yesterday P. M.

The beautiful residence of George O'Malley, 819 Hennepin avenue was badly damaged by fire yesterday afternoon when a spark from the chimney set fire to the roof. The entire roof and part of the second story was burned away before the flames were under control. Neighbors discovered the blaze and turned in the alarm.

When the fire was discovered, the entire west part of the roof was ablaze and the flames swept rapidly, engulfing the entire residence. When the fire department arrived two leads of hose were played on the flames which were then eating their way down into the rooms on the second floor. When water pressure was secured, the blaze was quickly drowned.

The entire house was damaged, the upper floor suffering from the flames, the attic and roof being burned away and the lower floor and basement being flooded from the two streams of water. The greater part of the household effects were removed by persons who tried to assist the firemen.

Chief Coffey stated this morning that the work of the department was hindered to some extent by motorists driving over the hose and it was reported that the names of some of these parties had been furnished the department members. The damage to the house and furnishings was estimated at about $6,000 which is covered by insurance. To the wind which swept the blaze south, is accounted the fact that the Dan Donovan residence was not badly damaged.

Says Coolidge Won His Nomination "Falsely"

La Follette Special En Route to Sioux Falls, S. D., Oct. 17.—South Dakota was the next objective of Senator R. M. La Follette as he continued active campaigning in the northwest. The independent presidential candidate planned an address at Sioux Falls tonight.

La Follette declared that Mr. Coolidge owed his nomination as vice president to "false and misleading propaganda" with reference to his attitude and actions during the Boston police strike and his elevation to the presidency to the death of President Harding, in an address last night.

I must admit that my judgment on character of some of the prominent business men of the village was wrong. I was not aware that I was living in a community that would resort to MOB LAW.

I thought the people were civilized.

By the act of Mob Violence I am crippled for the time being and don't know for how long my health may be impaired.

And owing to your attitude in that matter of what is best for the citizens of the village in regards to having officers that will enforce the laws too much difference exists between you and I consequently it would be folly for me to even try to have any more business relations with you.

In conclusion I resign at once. (Signed) George W. Johnston, Village President.

E. O. E. Orner, member of the board, inquired if the resignation was signed, after Mr. Wicker had finished reading it, and upon being told it was, Mr. Orner moved that the resignation be accepted. His motion was seconded by F. J. Blocher and was carried unanimously. Then came the cheers.

Mr. Orner then moved that George S. Ives, another member of the board, be appointed President pro tem, which motion was seconded by Wm. F. Brown and carried unanimously. At the next meeting, early in November, a permanent President will be elected by the members of the board, according to law.

Immediately after the acceptance of his resignation, Mayor Johnston left the room. The "mob" parted and let him depart in peace and quiet.

RESIGNED HIS POST AT MEET LAST EVENING

Resignation Promptly Accepted by Village Board 'Mid Cheers

The political career of George W. Johnston as Mayor of Franklin Grove, brief but stormy, has come to an end. Mayor Johnston resigned last night at the regular meeting of the village board and his resignation was accepted unanimously and with a promptness that spoke volumes. Mr. Johnston's action is the latest chapter in a series of events that have kept the village of Franklin Grove stirred up for many months. A number of the Mayor's actions caused a great deal of the citizens and a few weeks ago, when the Mayor is said to have seized a pet dog with the announced intention of killing it because it was not muzzled, the Mayor was set upon by a number of the men and rather roughly handled. The official is under bonds to the grand jury on a serious charge as a result of that escapade. He claims to still be suffering from injuries received at that time.

His Bond Had Expired.
Last night's meeting of the village board was looked forward to with a great deal of interest, because the Mayor's bond as chief officer of the village had expired and the question of renewal was to be brought up by members of the board who hoped to force him from office if the bond was not renewed.

The Mayor, however, forestalled any such action at an early point in the proceedings by offering his resignation. Apparently afraid the Mayor might change his mind, the board immediately accepted the resignation, to take effect at once.

The city hall was filled to capacity by interested citizens who broke into a cheer when the resignation was accepted and Village Clerk A. B. Wicker had some trouble restoring order.

Johnston's Resignation.
The written resignation which was offered by Mayor Johnston and accepted by the board read as follows: "Franklin Grove, Ill., Oct. 14, 1924. To the Trustees of the Village Board of Franklin Grove, Ill. Gentlemen:—

You have shown your loyalty this year in trying to get the much needed improvement to the water system and the most economical way of taking care of the streets, which I thank you for the support. Other conditions have arose that five of you have an attitude of differing with me in the matter of law enforcement. Your epistle of the eleventh Inst., ere you had any statement from me, you spilled the beans.

I must admit that my judgment on character of some of the prominent business men of the village was wrong. I was not aware that I was living in a community that would resort to MOB LAW.

I thought the people were civilized.

By the act of Mob Violence I am crippled for the time being and don't know for how long my health may be impaired.

E. O. E. Orner, member of the board, inquired if the resignation was signed, after Mr. Wicker had finished reading it, and upon being told it was, Mr. Orner moved that the resignation be accepted. His motion was seconded by F. J. Blocher and was carried unanimously. Then came the cheers.

WHEN "U" IS "V"

Why do modern architects assume that U is V and carve in stone that palpable and bold absurdity?
Now that we possess the U, with soft and graceful curve, of unexcelled docility and willingness to serve, why do they carve UNITED STATES and PUBLIC SCHOOL and even make the English language look as funny as the Dutch, with RESTAURANT and PULLMAN CAR and UNIVERSITY and other marks of educational per-versity?

That V impresses some of us as cheap and gaudy bluff, which par-veaves may pill in place of more substantial stuff, but people who are fashioned out of unpretentious dyest view all such affectation with an unseemly disgust. Such exhibitions al-

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS— Peanut Roast.

Peanut roast, a good substitute for meat loaf, is made by grinding peanuts very fine, mixing with bread crumbs and egg and seasoning, and baking it until it is a rich brown.

Must Be Dry.

Wools should be nearly dry after you attempt to iron them after laundering.

For Cream Soups.

One level tablespoon of flour or two-thirds of a level tablespoon of cornstarch will thicken a cup of liquid for cream soups.

Use Soda.

Soda added to the water for boiling vegetables that are a little old will make them much more tender.

For Patent Leather.

Scratches on patent leather shoes will not be noticeable if they are painted over with a mixture of olive oil and black ink applied with a fine brush.

To Clean Tub.

Kerosene oil is better than scouring brick for removing the ring that is deposited on the sides of the bathtub.

Soda or Ammonia.

For cleaning and for laundry purposes hard water should be softened by the addition of washing soda or ammonia.

Rub With Salt.

Rub egg stained spoons and other badly tarnished articles with salt before they are washed.

Hem Dish Towels.

It is best to hem your dish towels and dishcloths as the lint and threads from unhemmed cloths are apt to obstruct the sink drain.

Be Accurate.

Success in pastry making is achieved by accurate measurements. Always use standard measuring cups and spoons.

Removes Mildew Stains.

To remove mildew stains mix equal parts of powdered starch and soft soap and half as much common salt and the juice of a lemon. Soak the spots with this and put in the sun to dry.

For Boiled Fish.

Egg sauce is the proper accompaniment for boiled fish. A few bread crumbs spread over this sauce makes it delicious.

Menus for a Family Tested by SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cooked cereal with thin cream, broiled bacon, diced potatoes warmed in cream sauce,
brown bread toast, grape jelly, milk,
coffee.

Luncheon—Creamed celery with poached eggs on toast, baked pears, graham cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner—Scotch broth, baked ham,
baked potatoes, spinach, fruit salad,
Cranberry cheese, toasted crackers,
milk, coffee.

With the exception of the ham and crackers and cheese a four-year-old child may eat any of the dishes mentioned on the menu for the day.

His bacon should be broiled until crisp.

The Scotch broth is "heartly" and nourishing and makes up for the lack of meat, particularly since eggs were included in the luncheon.

Creamed Celery, Poached Eggs on Toast.

Two cups diced celery, 1½ cups milk, 3 tablespoons fat, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 4 poached eggs, 4 squares hot buttered toast.

Cook celery in as little boiling water as possible to prevent burning until tender. Melt butter, stir in flour and slowly add milk, stirring constantly. Add celery, salt and pepper.
Any water clinging to the celery should be used with the milk in making the sauce. Pour creamed celery over hot toast, drop a poached egg on each piece and serve very hot.

Baked Pears.

Four large pears, four teaspoons lemon juice, 4 tablespoons sugar, butter.

Wash pears and cut in halves. Remove cores. Put in a deep buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with sugar and put half a teaspoon lemon juice in each cavity. Dot with butter. Pour three or four tablespoons boiling water into dish to prevent burning. Cover dish and bake two or three hours in a slow oven. Any juice that cooks out of the pears should be poured into the cavity left by the core. For a "dressy" dessert serve pears masked with whipped cream and garnished with maraschino cherries.

Graham Cookies.

One and one-half cups graham flour, ½ cup bread flour, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 egg, 1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup milk, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup chopped raisins, ½ teaspoon cinnamon.

Cream butter and sugar. Beat egg well with milk. Mix and sift baking powder and bread flour. Add to graham flour with salt and cinnamon.
Add dry ingredients to sugar alternating with milk and egg. Add raisins and drop by spoonfuls onto a buttered and floured cookie sheet. Bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

Willard W. C. T. U. Meeting Wednesday

The Willard W. C. T. U. monthly meeting was held in the M. E.
church Wednesday afternoon. Mrs.
Emerson Bennett led the devotions.
During a brief business session Miss Carrie Swartz read a letter from the cided to have this department hold their meeting in December and plan for a speaker to come to Dixon. Rev.

"Jesus Came and Lifted Me."

E. E. Wingert, city attorney, gave a talk on the subject of "Casting the Vote," and urged everyone to see that they register their names before the election. Putting emphasis on the fact that each year the number of people voting is decreasing, his talk was very instructive and impartial.
Two new names were added to the membership list.

Actors Were Guests at White House Breakfast

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Oct. 17.—Presidential and stage hours clashed this morning at the White House and at the conclusion of two hours' merry battle it was declared a draw.

John Drew, Al Jolson and about forty other members of the Coolidge & Dawes stage club won in determining the hour for a breakfast engagement by arriving at the White House at 9:30 after the president had waited an hour and a half past his usual breakfast time.

Mr. Coolidge stepped from the arena of wit and fun, however, promptly at 10:30 to meet the cabinet at the regular hour just as his guests in the midst of a serenade, were joining in the chorus of "Keep Coolidge."

It was a lively morning, both in the breakfast room and later on the White House lawn where the actors entertained Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, not only with songs, but with impromptu speeches. Jolson mixed in a few "presidential jokes" and was successful in his threat to make Mr.
Coolidge "laugh out loud."

When it came to the singing of campaign songs, Mrs. Coolidge joined in with an enthusiastic soprano.

Before departing for the cabinet meeting, the president expressed his gratitude for the visit and assured his callers that the doors of the White House were open to them "at least until next March 4."

HIGH PRICES A TRICK.

Senator LaFollette tells the farmers that the increasing of prices of farm products is a trick played upon them by big business. Of course his conclusion is that they should vote for him, to enable him to smash big business, presumably so it can not play any more such tricks on them.

If it is a trick it is a mean one. It probably was put over by the banks with a selfish motive. The bankers wanted the farmers to pay their overdue loans at the banks, so they used the price of grains to be increased so the farmer could sell the grain and pay the banker what he owed him. Only a politician, a statesman, one who knows the way of wicked bankers, can see into their game.

It not only was a business trick, but it was a campaign trick, to work to the detriment of LaFollette. Big business as well could have put off the increase until after election. It could at least have waited until the farmer had shipped his wheat and it had passed into the hands of the grain speculator, permitting him to make the profit. That would have made better campaign stuff for LaFollette.

No, sir, big business went right out to the fields, where the threshing machines were humming, and sent up prices of wheat and oats in the face of the new crop.

Kansas farmers are said to have increased their bank deposits $20,000,000. In Iowa the farmers have paid off loans amounting to $33,000,000.

Sympathizing with LaFollette in return for his sympathy for them, the Kansas and Iowa farmers should have scorned the offers of big business, they should have turned back the dirty dollars, the bribe offered them for their votes.

Did they do it? Not yet.

The farmer knows the imminent shortage in the corn crop. He knows that when corn is short it affects prices of other grains and of hogs. He knows that the "stand" was reduced last spring first by dry weather, then by floods. He knows that when the "stand" is poor, that much never can be recovered. He knows that acreage was reduced by floods. He knows that can not be brought back. He knows that lack of sunshine has slowed maturity, and that as the frost line is approached this fall, the 1924 corn belt border is sent southward, a large acreage on the north being cut off as "soft." He knows that an early frost still further will reduce the crop in the belt that rarely has known corn failure.

LaFollette has hard luck with his presidential campaigns. In 1912 he was set to go when Roosevelt stepped in and took the "progressive" machinery away from him, and this year when he had arranged for a campaign on calamity his issue was taken away from him.

All he has left is government ownership of railroads and his proposal to permit congress to override the supreme court.

TRAVELERS.

On a tour of the world, started in 1919, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Richland of Los Angeles have already covered over 216,000 miles. Five more years of travel ahead.

So far they've used the auto for nearly 200,000 miles, which is a revelation in Good Roads. A century from now, trips of this length by airplane will be common. Nearly all of us miss a lot by being able to see only a small part of this world before we pass on to the next. Civilization at present has us in what amounts to penitentiary cells. Airplane will unlock the doors, 100 times more so than the auto.

If we get out of life what we put into it some will get out quick.

The last they saw of him, he was riding off on a star-fish

When the sword-fish poked his sharp nose into the bag of sleepy sand and spilled it all over the ocean. Tweekanose laughed and laughed. "Ha, ha, ha," he said, "ho, ho, ho," he chuckled. "You've caught me but it won't do any good. The sleepy sand is gone."

"Oh, goodness! That doesn't matter," exclaimed Nancy. "We know a charm."

"Yes, I know," said Tweekanose. "But your old charm won't do you any good, either. Suppose you do gather up the magic sand. You haven't a thing to put it into. The bag is all torn. There's a great big hole in it."

"That's easy to fix!" said Nancy. "We know another charm."

"Say what are you talking about?" whispered the Sand Man uneasily. "We don't know any charm that will mend holes."

"Of course we do," said Nancy. "The one Davy Jones taught us. Don't you remember?"

She picked up the torn bag and gathered the edges of the hole together and said:

"Link, link, link, ponder and think! Down under the water, It's right you should shrink."

And instantly the hole shrank and shrank until there wasn't any hole left at all and the bag was as good as new.

Even Tweekanose was so astonished that he had to say, "Well, the very idea!"

Suddenly the Sand Man said, "Im- my Jimmy!"

That was the other charm that the Green Wizard had taught them. Instantly all the magic sand separated itself from the rest of the sand.

HEALTHGRAMS

"By the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat bread" is an ancient commandment but it still holds good, says Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, who declares that folks who refuse to sweat lay themselves liable to diabetes as well as other ills. As a result of ease, luxury and over-eating which have increased phenomenally during the last 25 years, diabetes is now killing four times as many people in Illinois as it did a quarter of a century ago.

In 1902 diabetes caused 342 deaths in Illinois, last year it caused 1366. In other words the number of deaths from this disease has jumped from less than one to nearly four per day, a rise of 400 per cent.

Of the 1366 who died from diabetes in Illinois last year, 1127 were over 40 years old while 1081 were less than 70. Folks between 40 and 70 bear the brunt of mortality from diabetes and it is significant that this same age group includes the largest percentage of folks who have reached the point where savings are regular, easy living is a matter of some pride and a liberal supply of the best food on the market is none too good.

Diabetes is by no means the only weapon used by nature in her effort to correct the evil ways of man, particularly the iniquity of over-indulging the palate and underworking the muscles. Diabetes merely gets the folks who don't fall victim to some other degenerative disease. The body of man can stand a lot of abuse but 25 or 30 years of mature life seems to be about the limit for the sins of over-eating and under-exercise.

Sugar-coating the meals three times a day and between meals just as often seems to be a cardinal sin in relation to diabetes, as well as to other nutritional difficulties. At least this seems to be a reasonable conclusion when it is remembered that American people now consume an average of more than 100 pounds of sugar annually per capita whereas 25 pounds per capita was enough for our ancestors 100 years ago. Eating sugar, like most every other good thing, is all right if folks would only use a little judgment about it.

The organization of 25 well baby centers in as many different counties is one of the important items in the program of the state department of public health for the next year. According to the plans the centers will provide opportunity for mothers to bring their little children for medical examination and advice similar to what has been available at the baby conferences held in connection with local and state fairs. The centers will also provide follow up service for the benefit of children who have any physical defects and other conditions that indicate the necessity of correction through medical care. They also anticipate an advisory service to prospective mothers.

A new means of stimulating the interest of school children in their personal health is planned by the state health department. Health charts will be made for each child in each room that has had a physical examination and on the chart will be listed the physical defects disclosed by the examination. When the child has the defects corrected the fact will be recorded on the chart and a gold star will be placed opposite the child's name when all defects have been corrected. All gold star children will be given an Illinois health button to wear as indication of having done all that is required for the best physical condition possible.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES-COTT TO RUTH BURKE, CONTINUED

Dad raised his eyelids slowly, as if they were too weary to open, but into his face there came a look of infinite sweetness as he saw my mother looking pitifully old and grief-stricken, coming through the door.

She went over to his bed and knelt there, I could see she was almost at the end of her strength.

"Alice," he said, "You see I am very selfish. I could not have let you go first, so I am letting you remain to bear the burden of loneliness that I know will be yours. I think perhaps I have only held to life for the last week because I wanted to see John. I wanted to know that he would take up the sacred duty I had given over to him."

"He a son to her, John, for the little time she is with you. I do not think it will be for long," and his eyes rested fondly on the bowed head of mother.

"No, dear, it will not be long—oh, I hope it will not be long. I could not bear to have it long," she murmured.

"Everything has been settled, Alice. Leslie and John will carry out any of your wishes. I could have wished that Alice and Karl had been here that I might bid them goodbye, but it is just as well. It is very incongruous to be a long while dying."

Mother's face crept up toward dad. She seemed to be taking from his fast glancing eyes a gleam of love that was for her.

Then with a sigh, his eyelids dropped, and on his face slowly settled the peace that passeth all understanding.

So gently it came that even mother did not know until John with his arm around her, raised her to her feet and gently said:

"Come. Then, Ruth, the floodgates broke. My mother, who had been so calm, became a woman imbued with marvelous will, railing at fate.

"Leslie, Leslie, there is my whole thought," she said, turning to the still form of my father. "There is my whole love, and it is gone out of my life. I cannot bear it."

Gently we took her upstairs, and I watched her fall into a troubled sleep, after I had given her a quieting potion.

When John came up he found me in a paroxysm of tears. It was only then I realized my own great loss.

John came to me and took me in his arms and comforted me. Just the feel of his arms about me, Ruth, did give me comfort. I knew that all that which had gone before was nothing, and there was only between us our great love. I understood it.

"Now that they had grown alike in thought, speech, and views, and just as they had now become one, a part of this blessed whole is left here, forsaken and alone, in a desolate, aching void, while the other without volition, has gone into the Great Beyond—into that mysterious eternal finality which takes toll of us all, one by one."

TOMORROW: The letter continues.

DIABETES TAKES BIG TOLL LIVES IN THIS STATE

State Health Department Warns Against Life of Ease.

Springfield, Ill.—Fat folks and the lover of ease and luxury have been heard from again. This time it is a warning from their old enemy diabetes. During the past 20 years diabetes has jumped from twenty-fifth to eleventh place among the important causes of mortality in Illinois. The number of deaths from this disease increased 400 per cent in the state while the mortality rate per 100,000 people rose 300 per cent. The cause of this phenomenon lies chiefly in too much food with too little exercise on the part of the adult, according to Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health commissioner.

From over-eating and under-working, from the standpoint of muscular effort. Too many miles on wheels and too few on foot and too many square meals per day with too little sweating of the brow has caused nature to rebel and nature has manifested herself in the form of diabetes. Lack of Real Exercise.
"Twenty years ago when old hobnob was still in favor, when money was relatively scarce, when a fellow did not feel he was cursed by fate if he had to walk to work and the housewife felt that the family wash was a righteous part of her weekly duty, diabetes was almost insignificant as a cause of mortality, accounting for fewer deaths than either typhoid fever, whooping cough, scarlet fever, diphtheria or any of the long list of these. Now diabetes outranks all of these and bids fair to go still higher unless people mend their ways."
"Diabetes is more fatal to fat folks than to thin; it kills more city people than rural, more women than men and more people over 40 than younger. Jews suffer worse than gentiles while negroes escape better than whites. These things are explained by the fact that obese people usually eat considerably more than necessary and take too little exercise, city life is conducive to luxury and ease and women find more time to avoid exercise and put on superfluous flesh than men do. Jews have always been the merchants of the world while negroes have always found it necessary to do more manual labor, as a race, than the white.

"Insulin gave many people the hope of an easy way out but that drug is not used in treating diabetes without a strict dietary schedule while it has no place whatever in the preventing of the disease. A well balanced, reasonable diet with more sweat and less gas will go a long way toward preventing more ill than diabetes and it is about the only program that gives promise of checking that disease."

"We have heard enough, sir," Lord Henry interrupted.

"Have you so, by—!" he roared, stung suddenly to anger. "You shall hear yet a little more. The truth will prevail, you have said yourself; and prevail the truth shall since this sweet lady so desires it."

He was flushed, and his light eyes played over them like points of steel, and, like points of steel, they carried a certain measure of compulsion. He had stood before them half mocking and indifferent, resigned to hang and desiring the thing might be over and ended as speedily as possible. But all that was before he suspected that offer could still have anything to life him, whilst he conceived that Rosamund was definitely lost to him.

True he had the memory of a certain tenderness she had shown him yesterday aboard the galleys, but he had deemed that tenderness to be no more than such as the situation itself begot. Almost he had deemed the same to be here the case until he had witnessed her fierceness and despair in fighting for his life, until he had heard and gauged the sincerity of her avowal that she loved him and desired to make some amends to him for all that he had suffered in the past. That had spurred him, and, had a further spur been needed, it was afforded him when they branded her words with falsehood; mocked her to her face with what they supposed to be her lies. Anger had taken him at that to stiffen his resolve to make a stand against them and use the one weapon that remained him; that a merciful chance, a just God, had placed within his power almost despite himself.

"I little knew, sir," he said, "that Sir John was guided by the hand of destiny itself when, last night, in violation of the terms of my surrender, he took a prisoner from my galleon. That man is, as I have said, a sometime English seaman, named Jasper Leigh. He fell into my hands some months ago, and took the same road to escape from thralldom that I took myself under the like circumstances. I was merciful in that I permitted him to do so, for he is the very skipper who was suborned by Lionel to kidnap me and carry me into Barbary. With me he fell into the hands of the Spaniards. Have him brought hither and question him."

In silence they all looked at him, but on more than one face he saw the reflection of amazement at his impudence, as they conceived it. It was Lord Henry who spoke at last:

"Surely, sir, this is most odd, most suspiciously apt," he said, and there could be no doubt that he was faintly sneering. "The very man to be here aboard, and taken prisoner thus, almost by chance—"

"Not quite by chance, though very nearly. He conceives that he has a grudge against Lionel, for it was through Lionel that misfortune overtook him. Last night, when Lionel so rashly leapt aboard the galley, Jasper Leigh saw his opportunity to settle an old score and took it. It was as a consequence of that that he was arrested."

"Even so, the chance is still mysterious."

"Miracles, my lord, must happen sometimes if the truth is to prevail," Sir Oliver replied with a tinge of his earlier mockery. "Fetch him hither, and question him. He knows naught of what has passed here. It were a madness to suppose him primed for a situation which none could have foreseen. Fetch him hither, then."

Steps sounded outside, but went unheeded at the moment.

"Surely," said Sir John, "we have been trifled with by liars long enough!"

The door was flung open, and the black figure of the surgeon made its appearance.

"Sir John!" he called urgently, knocking without ceremony into the proceedings, and never heeding Lord Henry's scowl. "Master Tresillian has recovered consciousness. He is asking for you and for his brother. Quick, sir! He is sinking fast."

CHAPTER XXXIV

THE JUDGMENT

To that cabin below the whole company repaired in all speed in the surgeon's wake. Sir Oliver coming last between his guards. They assembled about the couch where Lionel lay, leaden-faced of face, his breathing labored, his eyes dull and glazing.

Sir John ran to him, went down upon one knee to put loving arms about that chilling clay, and very gently raised him in them, and held him so, resting against his breast,

"Lionel!" he cried in stricken accents.

And then, as if thoughts of vengeance were to soothe and comfort his sinking friend's last moments, he added:

"We have the villain fast."

Very slowly, and with obvious effort, Lionel turned his head to the right, and his dull eyes went beyond Sir John and made quest in the ranks of those that stood about him.

"Oliver?" he said in a hoarse whisper. "Where is Oliver?"

"There is not the need to distress you," Sir John was beginning, when Lionel interrupted him.

"Wait!" he commanded in a louder tone. "Is Oliver safe?"

"I am here," said Sir Oliver's deep voice, and those who stood between him and his brother drew aside that they might cease from screening him.

Lionel looked at him for a long moment in silence, sitting up a little. Then he sank back again slowly against Sir John's breast.

"God has been merciful to me a sinner," he said, "since He accords me the means to make amends, tardily though it be."

Then he struggled up again, and held out his arms to Sir Oliver, and his voice came in a great pleading cry:

"Noli! My brother! Forgive!"

Oliver advanced, none hindering until, with his hands still pinioned behind him, he stood towering there above his brother, so tall that his turban brushed the low ceiling of the cabin. His countenance was stern and grim.

"What is it that you ask me to forgive?" he asked.

Lionel struggled to answer, and sank back again into Sir John's arms, fighting for breath; there was a trace of blood-stained foam about his lips.

"Speak! Oh, speak, in God's name!" Rosamund exhorted him from the other side, and her voice was wrung with agony.

He looked at her, and smiled faintly.

"Never fear," he whispered. "I shall speak. God has spared me to that end. Take your arms from me, Killigrew. I am the—vilest of men. It—was I who killed Peter Godolphin."

"My God!" groaned Sir John, whilst Lord Henry drew a sharp breath of dismay and realization.

"Ah, but that is not my sin," Lionel continued. "There was no sin in that. We fought, and in self-defense I slew him—fighting fair. My sin came afterwards. When suspicion fell on Oliver, I nourished it—Oliver knew that the deed was mine, and kept silent that he might screen me. I feared the truth might become known for all that—and—and I was jealous of him, and—and I had him kidnapped to be sold."

His fading voice trailed away into silence. A cough shook him, and the faint crimson foam on his lips was increased. But he rallied again, and lay there panting, his fingers plucking at the coverlet.

"Tell them," said Rosamund, who in her desperate fight for Sir Oliver's life kept her mind cool and steady and directed towards essentials, "tell them the name of the man you hired to kidnap him."

"Jasper Leigh, the skipper of the Swallow," he answered, whereupon she flashed upon Lord Henry a look that contained a gleam of triumph for all that her face was ashen and her lips trembled.

Then she turned again to the dying man, relentlessly almost in her determination to extract all vital truth from him ere he fell silent.

"Tell them," she bade him, "under what circumstances Sir Oliver sent you last night to the Silver Heron."

"Nay, there is no need to harass him," Lord Henry interposed. "He has said enough already. May God forgive us our blindness, Killigrew!"

Sir John bowed his head in silence over Lionel.

"Is it you, Sir John?" whispered the dying man. "What? Still there? Ha!" he seemed to laugh faintly, then checked. "I am going—" he muttered, and again his voice grew stronger, obeying the last flicker of his shrinking will.

"Noli! I am dying! I—I have made reparation—all that I could. Give me—give me thy hand!"

Gropingly he put forth his right hand.

"I should have given it you ere this but that my wrists are bound," cried Oliver in a sudden frenzy.

And then exerting that colossal strength of his he suddenly snapped the cords that pinioned him as if they had been thread. He caught his brother's extended hand, and dropped upon his knees beside him.

"Lionel, boy!" he cried.

It was as if all that had befallen in the last five years had been wiped out of existence. His fierce, relentless hatred of his half-brother, his burning sense of wrong, his parching thirst of vengeance, became on the instant all dead, buried and forgotten. More, it was as if they had never been. Lionel in that moment was again the weak, comely, beloved brother whom he had cherished and screened and guarded, and for whom when the hour arrived he had sacrificed his good name, and the woman he loved, and placed his life itself in jeopardy.

"Lionel, boy!" was all that for a moment he could say.

Then:

"Poor lad! Poor lad!" he added. "Temptation was too strong for thee."

And reaching forth, he took the other white hand that lay beyond the couch, and so held both tightly clasped within his own.

From one of the ports a ray of sunshine was creeping upwards towards the dying man's face. But the radiance that now overspread it was from an inward source. Feebly he returned the clasp of his brother's hands.

"Oliver, Oliver!" he whispered. "There is none like thee! I ever knew thee as noble as I was base. Have I said enough to make you safe? Say that he will be safe now," he appealed to the others, "that no—"

"He will be safe," said Lord Henry stoutly. "My word on't."

"It is well. The past is past. The future is in your hands, Oliver. God's blessing on't."

He seemed to collapse, to rally yet again. He smiled pensively, his mind already wandering.

"That was a long swim last night—the longest I ever swam. From Penarrow to Trefusis—a fine long swim. But you were with me, Noli. Had my strength given out—I could have depended on you. I am still chilled from it, for it was cold—cold—"

He shuddered, and lay still.

Gently, Sir John lowered him to his couch. Beyond it Rosamund fell upon her knees and covered her face, whilst by Sir John's side Oliver continued to kneel, clasping in his own his brother's chilling hands.

There ensued a long spell of silence. Then with a heavy sigh Sir Oliver folded Lionel's hands across his breast, and slowly, heavily rose to his feet.

The others seemed to take this for a signal. It was as if they had but waited mute and still out of deference to Oliver. Lord Henry moved softly round to Rosamund and touched her lightly upon the shoulder. She rose and went out in the wake of the others. Lord Henry following her, and none remaining but the surgeon.

Outside in the sunshine they checked. Sir John stood with bent head and hunched shoulders, his eyes upon the white deck. Timidly almost—a thing never seen before in this bold man—he looked at Sir Oliver.

"He was my friend," he said sorrowfully, and as if to excuse and explain himself, "and—and I was misled through love of him."

"He was my brother," replied Sir Oliver solemnly. "God rest him!"

Sir John, resolved, drew himself up into an attitude preparatory to receiving with dignity a rebuff should it be administered him.

"Can you find it in your generosity, sir, to forgive me?" he asked, and his air was almost one of challenge.

Silently Sir Oliver held out his hand. Sir John fell upon it almost in eagerness.

"We are like to be neighbors again," he said, "and I give you my word I shall strive to be a more neighborly one than in the past."

"Then, sir," said Sir Oliver, looking from Sir John to Lord Henry, "I am to understand that I am no longer a prisoner."

"You need not hesitate to return with us to England, Sir Oliver," replied his lordship. "The queen shall hear your story, and we have Jasper Leigh to confirm it if need be, and I will go warranty for your complete reinstatement. Count me your friend, Sir Oliver, I beg."

And, he, too, held out his hand. Then turning to the others—

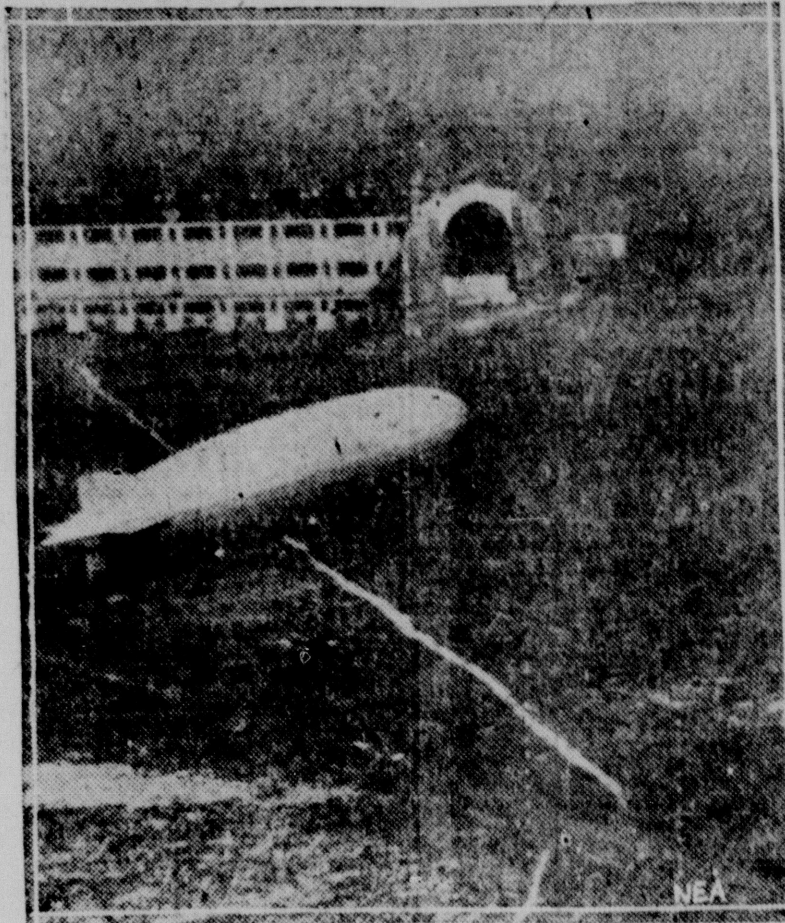

"Come, sirs," he said, "we have duties elsewhere, I think."

They tramped away, leaving Oliver and Rosamund alone. The twin looked long each at the other. There was so much to say, so much to ask, so much to explain, that neither knew with what words to begin. Then Rosamund suddenly came up to him holding out her hands.

"Oh, my dear!" she said, and that, after all, summed up a deal.

One or two over-inquisitive seamen, lounging on the fore-castle and peeping through the shrouds, were disgusted to see the lady of Godolphin Court in the arms of a be-turbaned bare-legged follower of Mohammed.

THE END

As the ZR-3 nestled down to earth at Lakehurst, Bob Dorman, NEA Service photographer in an airplane, piloted by Jim Ray, one of the country's best known aviators, circled above the field. This remarkable air view resulted.

New York—Just about the most sophisticated thing in this sophisticated town is a black cat. It sleeps on the sidewalk on Forty second St., 100 feet from Times Square.

Thousands throng by on their way to the theater. Rags and satins. The beautiful and damned and the ugly and blessed. Rich man and poor man. Many stop to stroke the cat's head. It pays no attention. It is neither resentful nor responsive. It is a picture of complete indifference to the milling multitude that reflects all the drama of humanity.

What does such a cat think about? Rerundown characters with rerundown heels? Ten cent shines on $4 shoes? Fourteen dollar shoes on worthless bodies? Unshapely ankles flashily displayed? Neat ankles almost hidden? Uglyest women with most conspicuous clothes? Most accomplished men with unpressed trousers? Eagerness, freedom, love of life in one step? Dejection, hopelessness in another? Crunching cruelty in another? You wouldn't have to look any higher than this dozing cat looks to thrill to the comedy and the tragedy that goes tramping, swirling by the craziest, busiest, brightest corner in this country.

Yes, and many men crowd this corner to look no higher than the cat looks. But most of them miss the drama.

His clothes are dirty. His work is dirty. He lives down in Cherry street, where there is much dirt and darkness, and rents are cheap. There he could afford to have an "apartment" of two rooms—with running water in the hallway.

He owned a second-hand photograph and a second-hand violin and second-hand furniture.

When he returned from work the other day his apartment was empty. Somebody had stolen all of his second-hand belongings.

"Well, I'm glad I didn't buy that second-hand piano the other day," he said when he saw his empty rooms.

P. S.—He has rented a furnished room farther uptown. He bought a new, cheap violin. He carries it to work with him every morning.

New York—Chinatown has lost its color, even in war. The only difference between the ill-handled, lazy-killer of Chinatown and his neighbor of the Bowery is in the slant of his eyes.

In every other particular the killers in the desolatory warfare now being waged between the Hip Sing and

On Leong tongs are like the typical cake-eating gunman of America.

Gone are the hatchmen. Gone are the Chinese of another generation who made Mott, Pell and Dwyer streets run red with blood. Gone are the long-queued battlers who stood toe to toe in the underground tunnels and fought with steel until one was dead.

Leaders of the tongs no longer marshal their forces for combat. They telegraph to Philadelphia, Chicago or Cleveland for gunmen. They designate the man they want killed and pay the killer $200, or less.

These gunmen are Chinese youths whose ages run from 16 to 30. They wear sporty overcoats, yellow caps, patent leather shoes, bell-bottomed trousers and plastered hair, a la Valentino.

Not one of them would do an honest day's toil. They are the lazy sons of industrious fathers. Like the second generation of Jewish, Italian, German and Russian immigrants, these Chinese youths have been spoiled by indulgent parents who never knew anything but ambition and work when they came over here.

The Chinese gunman is not an expert shot.

"They shoot like girls," says Detective Arthur Lavery. "They always use automatics. They hold them out at the side, their arms stiff, close their eyes and pull the trigger. They move the gun in an arc and thus get a sweeping fire, depending on luck to get their man."

Lavery knows all about that. Tom Fong shot at Lavery that way the other day, emptying his pistol but failing to hit Lavery. Lavery shot

Last Two Weeks Have Made Corn Crop a Certainty

Corn is made around Dixon, according to a well known north side farmer, who regards this season as one of the most favorable in his experience. The past two weeks of warm weather have continued the summer into the fall and brought about a condition that men could not have devised if they had had the running of the weather to suit themselves.

A few late plantings will not mature and they never had a chance to mature after the early summer coolness held them back too much for the season's remaining warmth to fill out the ears. But even this corn is good for silage, and other fields that were questionable on the first of October are now well out of all danger of frosts and freezing. The frosts came at just the right time to check the growth and permit the hardening of the ears.

Not only is corn making good beyond the early dreams of the farmers, but everything else about the farms is going strong these days. Most of the fall plowing is done, though a few are still plowing for wheat. Some wheat fields are green and sturdy. Pastures have remained green long after the usual time and red clover fields are a sight to behold for mid-October. A third crop of clover has been cut in some instances and a number of fields are fit for cutting now, though the growth is shorter than the summer crop.

The farmer mentioned has a clover field which he will use as a pasture and plow it under in the spring. He cut his second crop with such good results that he is satisfied with what he has in the way of clover hay, a tender, juicy stalk that he would not trade for alfalfa.

Just now alfalfa fields that have been properly cared for are wonderfully green and the weather is ideal for harvesting the third cutting. With the good wheat crop and the fair oats crop, all eventually harvested and threshed except where floods caused disaster in certain parts, the harvest is satisfactory.

Paris—Professor Voronoff, inventor of the monkey-gland operation for the rejuvenation of mankind, is credited with a discovery for the prolonging of life by prevention of hardening of the arteries, which is common symptom of old age. YDE SUMMONED TO EXPLAIN TALE HE DENIES HE TOLD Freeport Pitcher Asked to Meet Landis and Tell His Story.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 17.—Emil Yde, Pittsburgh National League pitcher, has been summoned by K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner to appear before him with any information he may have concerning the Jimmy O'Connell, "Coney" Dolan affair.

The commissioner's action was the outcome of reports of statements attributed to Yde, in which he was quoted as saying "Something more sensational may be sprung shortly."

At his home in Freeport, Illinois, Yde issued a statement in which he denied having made any statements regarding the terms of his contract with the Pittsburgh club or the condition of any player on the Pittsburgh club before a game with New York or any other team.

Commissioner Landis said he was anxious to get any facts that might lead to finding any others who may have been involved. "I want to know whether the expulsion from organized baseball of O'Connell and Dolan has cleared up the matter."

DREYFUSS BACKS YDE
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 17.—Emil Yde's too level headed to give out such a statement unless he had positive proof and if he had that he would have talked to me first. He never mentioned it," declared Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Pittsburgh club, in a statement issued last night following the action of Commissioner Landis.

Yde's refusal of the remarks attributed to him in the Rockford paper's story which was printed Oct. 7 and to stories from Pittsburgh in Chicago newspapers was unequivocal. The Rockford paper stated that Yde had signed a three year contract with the Pirates at a figure of $24,000, and that his contract with the Beloit Fairies basketball team, had been purchased by the Pittsburgh club.

It further stated that Yde "in conversation with a Rockford friend" had given some "inside dope" on the final series between the Giants and Pirates.

It had Yde quoted as saying that just before this series Maranville, Cuyler and Moore went on a protracted spree. Further it said that general opinion in the National League was that the Giants and the Braves were "one and the same" and that McGraw's money is behind the Braves.

All of this was flatly denied and with some vehemence by the young Freeport ball player. He told newspaper men he knew no more about the baseball scandal than any one on the outside.

Wants to Know Source.
"I'd be a fine guy to have said that about Maranville, Cuyler and Moore, wouldn't I?" was the way he spoke of that part of the alleged interview. "Whoever wrote that must believe I haven't any brains at all."

"I have given no interview to anyone in Pittsburgh or in Rockford or anywhere else. How should I know that McGraw is going to get the gate? I don't know where any of that stuff came from."

Yde, who was a sensation in the National League this year, is at present resting up from the arduous campaign at his Freeport home. He leaves next week for California on a hunting and fishing trip.

MAROON FANS SEE STAGG'S TACTICS WIN "Old Man's" Policy of Line-Smashing Seems Successful Now.

Chicago, Oct. 17.—After watching the Maroons rip and tear their way through the Brown line, the same line that defeated Harvard last year, football fans at the University of Chicago believe their football team this year will be a vindication of Coach Stagg's "line bucking game."

Coach Stagg has almost invariably stuck to the line bucking game for his principal offense and, with minor exceptions, it has been measurably successful.

Last season Coach Zuppke and his Illinois cohorts solved the attack and stopped it. The year before when the Maroons went through the conference unbeaten, except for a tie with the Badgers, the invading Princeton Tigers upset the Maroon hopes. Before that, the Maroons defeated Princeton at Princeton, only to go down for their only defeat of the year at the hands of Ohio State.

This season, Midway fans are predicting that Stagg is in the process of developing a perfect line bucking game. The five middle men in the Maroon line—Gowdy, Pondellik, Rolleston, Pokras and Henderson are all members of Stagg's famous "beef trust" and with such weight conditions are thought to be good for the development of a perfect line attack.

This week the Stagg men will come up against Coach Navy Bill Ingram's Hoosiers, and, although the Indiana squad is stronger than for many years past the Maroon campus has high hope for victory. The real test will come the following week when the Maroons journey to Columbus to meet Ohio State.

Four Outstanding Games in Western Conference

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Oct. 17.—Football fans today were trekking along middle western roads drawn by the lodestars of four Western Conference conflicts of championship consideration tomorrow.

It is probable that 67,000 spectators will view the Illinois-Michigan game. Many have already arrived in Urbana to greet the Wolverine varsity squad of 34 players and to participate in the dedication of the Illinois stadium.

Both squads staged penultimate practice on the battle ground. Forty Indiana huckles made up the gridiron contingent which entrained for Chicago.

Minnesota, en route to Madison to engage Wisconsin, halted in Milwaukee today to limber up.

Purdue has en trained for Evanston where they will play Northwestern.

Ohio State and Iowa, scheduled with Ohio Wesleyan and Lawrence respectively, in non-conference games ended their preparations today.

Hectic Games Expected in the East Tomorrow

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, Oct. 17.—The boys are rolling today into the territory of gridiron enemies.

Dartmouth will arrive at Yale strengthened by a fervid farewell by Hanover student body. Rutgers is en route to Ithaca for its game with Cornell.

Notre Dame was due to arrive here from South Bend on its annual pilgrimage to the east.

The Army eleven will renew its effort to defeat Rockne's Blue comet at the Polo Grounds Saturday.

Columbia, with its best opportunity to win from Penn since the last victory in 1903 will leave for Philadelphia to prepare for the most severe test Percy Haughton's system has yet received.

Navy will be off to meet Princeton, after a week during which scrimmages were held.

500,000 Tons Limestone Used in State Last Year

Urbana, Oct. 17.—Approximately 500,000 tons of limestone were used to sweeten agricultural lands of the state in 1923, as against 22,000 tons in 1911, according to F. W. "As a result of the increased use of this material," he said, "commercial organizations of the state, which furnish some of the good tea, 'say it with Flowers' is the slogan for Saturday."

The minister closed the two weeks' revival services at Pine Creek Tuesday night. There were only four new members added. The Pennsylvania Corners neighborhood is a most remarkable one for the high integrity and splendid morals of the people. The sterling qualities of Brother D. F. Seyster made a lasting impression on the community for good, and he will long be remembered. The Bible School there, under the leadership of Clarence Seyster, is one of the best rural schools the Dixon minister ever visited. The church will co-operate with Coleta and Grand Detour churches in calling a minister to take up the joint pastorate.

It is not only election day, when every citizen should exercise the franchise—right at the polls, but it will be the opening of our two weeks' revival meeting with W. B. Slater of Moline doing the preaching.

LOOK OUT FOR SELF POISONING

Neglect of the liver results in self poisoning! Not so quickly, perhaps, but just as surely as if you drank poison out of a bottle. If your liver is not doing its work of helping digestion, eliminating waste from the bowels and purifying the blood, you will always be troubled with sick headaches, nausea, biliousness, bad breath, gas, sour stomach, or constipation.

Cleanse and tone your liver! Put your system in condition so you feel your very best again! Try just a spoonful of Dr. H. S. Thacher's excellent Liver and Blood Syrup after the next few meals and notice the quick improvement in the way you eat, sleep, look and feel—the return of strength, vigor and energy. You will be completely satisfied; otherwise there will be no cost. Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup is sold and recommended by Public Drug & Book Co., and all other leading druggists.

vaccination is being urged in the hope of preventing a further spread of the disease.

Because smallpox is regarded as a cold weather disease there is some apprehension felt, but physicians generally believe it can be stamped out if the public gives the proper co-operation. None of the cases are virulent.

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Gaiters, An English Style

It is with doubt and diffidence that even the boldest fashion writer mentions spats. He is ready to bolt for the cyclone cellar if anybody as much as points a finger at him. Somehow, or other, most of us at once bracket spats with "uttering platitudes in stained-glass attitudes"; with the vanished dude of a former generation; with putting on more airs than a phonograph; with a type of man who sleeps in America, but dreams of England. Isn't it so?

Presidents, cabinet members, kings, princes, statesmen, diplomats, bankers, lawyers and bridegrooms may wear spats, but "the average man," pillar of the Commonwealth, will have none of them. Indeed, he recoils from them as from a shock, though it is well to remember that one is only shocked by a live wire. On the wrong side of the Atlantic, that is, Europe, spats are regarded as a necessary part of the dress of a gentleman, even though he be of humble station and moderate means. On the right side of the Atlantic, that is, this country, spats have a long way to go before they will be accepted by the majority of men.

Who does not remember when the wrist-watch was looked upon as womanish? Yet, to-day, it is universally worn by golfers and sportsmen and no stigma of effeminacy attaches to it. Similarly, spats, worn with low shoes to warm and protect a man's ankles, are a sensible, useful style to which no exception can be taken. Indeed, spats are derived from the sportsman or horseman who puts them on to guard his feet against brambles and briars or painful knocks when shooting or riding.

All this is not intended to exalt spats; merely to explain them. They have a place and a purpose in dress which should not be derided. The 4-button gaiter, illustrated here, is made of light-colored English canvas or boxcloth. It is correctly worn with either formal afternoon clothes or with a business suit when some degree of formality is sought.

The Affair at Tower Acres
By CAROLYN WELLS
© 1924 by MIA Service Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The body of Douglas Raynor is found in the early evening on the floor of the sun room at Tower Acres, his long, island home. Raynor has been shot through the heart. Spreading over the dead man, pistol in hand, is Malcolm Finley, former sweetheart of Raynor's wife, Nancy. Eva Turner, Raynor's nurse, stands by the door with her hand still on the light switch. In a moment Nancy appears, white-faced and terrified. Orville Kent, Nancy's brother, comes in from the south side of the room, and then Ezra Goddard, friend of Finley with others, enters upon the scene. "It was either Mr. Finley or Mrs. Raynor who fired that shot," accuses Nurse Turner. At last, to the satisfaction of the party, the police arrive on the scene to conduct an investigation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

The chief, whose name was Pell, remained in the sun parlor with the physicians, but after a few moments there, Detective Dobbins, who had been assigned to the case, came into the living room and looked inquiringly about him.

"I am Ezra Goddard," said the self-appointed spokesman. "A friend of the late Mr. Raynor. This is Mrs. Raynor, and Miss Mattie Raynor—a sister."

The others were introduced, both Finley and Kent acknowledging their names by the slightest of nods and some servants were designated.

Detective Dobbins sat down and as he rolled his beady black eyes from one to another he rubbed his hands as if in active enjoyment of the situation.

"Who was the last to see Mr. Raynor alive?" he began, in a most workmanlike way.

"That is the regulation question, Mr. Dobbins," said Goddard. "But, as usual, it is almost impossible to answer. If Mr. Raynor was shot by the hand of another, that individual was, of course, the last one to see him alive. Now, of that we have no knowledge. If, on the other hand, Mr. Raynor committed suicide—"

"Suicide!" cried the astounded Dobbins. "I have not been told that there is any suggestion of that."

He looked like a man suddenly defrauded of his rights.

"It's not a question of suggestion, Mr. Dobbins," Goddard went on, suavely, "but of investigation. And a rational investigation must consider all possibilities."

"Quite so—quite so," Detective Dobbins began to wish that Mr. Goddard had never been born.

"Well," he resumed, after a moment's thought, "let us put it this way, then. Which one of you were among the last to see Mr. Raynor alive?"

"Ah, that's better," and Goddard smiled approval. "I can answer that for all of us. We were all together on the terrace having tea. After tea we still sat there until dusk began to fall. Then several neighbors who were with us started for their homes. And we, the members of the family and household, dispersed to our rooms to dress for dinner."

"All of you here present were at tea with Mr. Raynor?"

"Yes," said Goddard, and others nodded.

"Who left the group first?"

"The guests from the neighboring houses," Goddard replied.

"And next?"

"I did," Orville Kent said; "I went with one of the guests, a young lady from the Fay place, next to this."

"And after Mr. Kent?" Dobbins queried, his black eyes taking in the expression on each face.

"I think I went off next," Finley said, "unless Miss Turner, the nurse, preceded me. Of that I'm not quite sure."

"I'm sure," Nan said; "Miss Turner did go before Mr. Finley—she went to the pantry to see about some malted milk for my husband. And then my husband rose and went himself into the house."

"And from the house into that room—that sun parlor, I believe you call it."

"Yes," Nancy agreed, "that is, he must have done so. But when he left me he went into the house."

"You were then alone at the tea table, Mrs. Raynor?"

"The tea table had been removed, Mr. Dobbins, some time since. But, yes, I was then alone on the west terrace, where we had had tea."

"What did you do?"

"Do? Why, nothing. I sat a moment, thinking I must go and dress for dinner, but delaying a few moments to enjoy the soft evening air and the fragrance of my flowers."

"And you sat there until—"

"Until—" Nan repeated, a far-away, reminiscent look in her eyes.

LOWDEN RECITES STORY LIFE OF JUDGE CARTWRIGHT

Memorial in Supreme Ct. Today Tribute to Justice.

Springfield, Oct. 16.—The life story of the late Justice James H. Cartwright of the Illinois supreme court, who died this summer at his home in Oregon, Ill., was today told by former Governor Frank O. Lowden. The story was the memorial address at exercises held here in memory of Justice Cartwright of the Illinois State Bar association. Five former governors of Illinois, all of the justices of the supreme court and prominent lawyers from every part of the state were on the program.

"The frontier is always peopled by the young and hardy and adventurous," said Mr. Lowden, "and it was in this environment that James H. Cartwright spent his youth. With his father and family he first lived in LaFayette Grove, in Ogle County, then in Prophetstown, Monmouth, Macomb and Centerville. About the year 1850 the family returned to Ogle county and the father built a home at Mt. Morris. Here for the first time the log cabin gave way to the more modern board house."

"It was there that young Cartwright obtained part of a grammar school education and there he entered the Rock River seminary. He was unable to finish his course at the seminary but secured a position in a nearby county school because of his excellent scholastic record. When the Civil War broke out, Justice Cartwright, then only 19, volunteered and served in the Sixty-ninth and 104th Illinois regiments. The latter regiment unanimously elected him captain."

Elected Judge in 1888.
When he returned to civil life, he took up the study of law and entered the University of Michigan in 1865. When he was graduated in 1867, he spent several years practicing in Oregon. Later he became general attorney for the Chicago & Iowa railroad company. In 1888 he was elected to a circuit judgeship. He was re-elected in 1891 and assigned to Appellate court duty at Ottawa.

"In 1895 he was elected to the Supreme bench to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Justice Bailey of Freeport. He was re-elected three times and last spring he was re-nominated without opposition. If he had lived he would have been elected by practically a unanimous vote."

Justice Cartwright's chief recreation was breeding and developing trotting and pacing horses.

A tribute to the work of Justice Cartwright as a lawyer was paid by former Governor Joseph W. Pifer.

"He worked, he struggled and he succeeded," Mr. Pifer said. "He succeeded in becoming a great lawyer and a great judge. For 29 years he adorned a bench distinguished for learning and ability. His opinions are models of good English. His mind was broad and comprehensive and he well understood that the security and

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist happiness of all depend upon just laws justly administered by courts of justice. His logic was as merciless as a storm and he could not be imposed upon with nonsense."

No jurist in Illinois ever upheld the constitution with more faith and devotion than Justice Cartwright, said former governor Edward F. Dunne.
"It was largely because of Justice Cartwright's bold and determined defense of the bill of rights, as contained in the constitution of 1870, that the proposed constitution was defeated in 1922," Gov. Dunne asserted.

Sprague Opens Cook Co. Campaign at City Club

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Col. Albert A. Sprague, democratic candidate for U. S. Senator, opened his Cook county campaign here today with an address before the City Club in which he declared the blackest chapter of the last four years of national administration was not written by Fall or Daugherty, but in the dishonesty and negligence of those entrusted with the administration of the Veterans Bureau.

"I would a thousand times rather occupy the places of those whose names are enrolled on the lists of those who betrayed their country," he said, "than to take the place of those who exploited the sick and disabled, who robbed the helpless living service men in their home land."

"I do not believe the public has yet grasped the enormity of the crime against these men who gave all, or the full guilt of those who perpetrated it."

Application of the best business principles to public problems he pronounced necessary. In matters of grave importance, he said, men in governmental affairs should consider themselves first citizens of the United States and then either republicans or democrats.

LOCKWOOD HITS DAVIS FOR HIS NOT ANSWERING

Sends Democratic Candidate Hot Message from Capital.

Washington, Oct. 16.—George B. Lockwood, former secretary of the republican national committee today telegraphed John W. Davis that the latter's statement issued last night in Illinois had failed to establish proof of the charges made by the democratic presidential nominee regarding the indictment of Senator Wheeler of Montana. In his statement Mr. Davis quoted testimony before a senate committee touching on Mr. Lockwood's connection with the case and declared that even if Mr. Lockwood were "a person of sufficient consequence to deserve a reply" to his earlier telegram on the subject, the tone of that message made a reply unnecessary.

"Replying to your statement," said the telegram sent by Mr. Lockwood today, "any citizen important enough for you to attack on the stump, is important enough to be entitled to a fair answer when he demands proof of your charges which you have failed to give."

"You charged in your Terre Haute speech that I was involved in a criminal conspiracy to 'frame up' on Senator Wheeler."

"You know as a lawyer that Senator Wheeler was regularly indicted by a grand jury composed of his Montana neighbors, not in Washington."

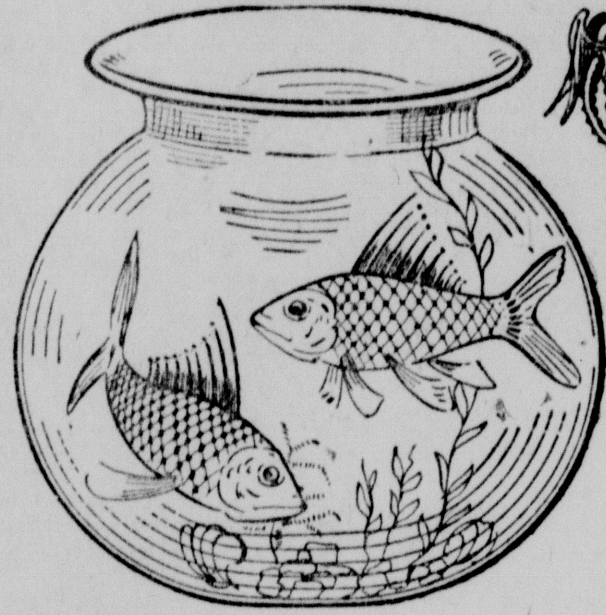

"Do you really think it a crime to discover evidence of a democratic senator's malfeasance and turn it over to the legally established tribunals for prosecution of crime, while a virtue for your friend Wheeler to air the testimony of criminals against public officials in a court of inquiry, governed by no rules of law or evidence? Do you believe that when a public official is charged with betrayal of his trust he ought to be free from prosecution because he is a member of your political party and that those who bring to the notice of the public and the courts, the official misdoings of public officials should be branded as criminal for doing it? This is the only fair conclusion that can be drawn from your statement."
